An affray occurred in the Berkley Hotel at a late hour to-night, which resulted in the arrest of J. J. Courtney, a traveling man, of Alken, S. C., and J. M. Wells, the night clerk of the hotel. The trouble grew out of a statement Mr. Wells accused Mr. Courtney of making with reference to him. Words passed, and Mr. Courtney called Mr. Wells a liar, whereupon Wells drew a knife and struck at Courtney, who was cut in the hand while warding off the blow. Courtney the drew a revolver. The ruenwere separated before any further damage was done, and both immediately placed under arrest, below subsequently released on bonds—Mr. Wells in $100 and Mr. Courtney in $500.

Two Stalwart Negroes Fight With Club and Razor.

With Club and Razor.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.)

GREENSORO, N. C., July 7.—John Lee and John Coleman, negroes, had an altercation yesterday morning. By agreement, they met last night on East Marliet Street. Lee had a razor, Coleman a solid Ightwood club, four feet long,
about the size of a man's wrist, and as Jeavy almost as lead. Both men are of nowerful build, being over six feet tall and weighing at least 200 pounds each.
Policemen summoned to the spot found both men lying unconscious in the Policemen summoned to the spot found both men "lying unconscious in the suburban street. They wore taken to their respective homes, and at 12 o'clock to-day were unable to give any account of the desperate duel. The lightwood club, wielded by one, is bloody all over, and the razor, used by the other, has co-guilated blood all over the handle. The condition of the men shows that Lee, who wielded the razor, is having a close sace for life with Coleman, who used the club. The latter is cut on the breast, ecross the throat, on the shoulder, face and right arm, and has lest much blood. Lee shows that the club broke his nose, possibly his skull, one arm, and his face is pounded into a felly.

Both men are dangerously near death, and officers are feeling no concern about their escaping arrest.
